

Countywide and Regional Funding Solutions

A Two-Hour Webinar for California Organizations

March 2 & 4, 2022

As low water levels and restricted access to water become ever more prevalent, counties and water purveyors are finding different and innovative ways to respond to continued drought and changing water quality conditions. This course is intended to provide an overview of funding and resources available for counties to implement programs to address water quality and drought impacts to state small water systems and domestic well users within their jurisdiction. Join us to learn about these new approaches, programs, and funding available to respond to persistent drought conditions throughout California.

Participants will

- Gain insight into programs that are currently being implemented
- How to apply for funding and assistance
- Where to go for more information

The target audience is county staff/representatives and non-governmental organizations that could apply to implement a program on their behalf.

This training does not qualify for CEUs/credits.
